from Noon - 2 p.m.

As you know, Emmaus provides services to low-income seniors and the vulnerable elderly residing in the District of Columbia. Our support helps older adults through advocacy to remain active, respected, independent and vital members of their community.

Our Aging in Community Award recognizes a public servant, an organization and an individual who has made a difference in the lives of seniors living in the District of Columbia.

This year's honorees are: The Honorable Kathy Greenlee, Undersecretary for the Administration on Aging; Washington Regional Area Grantmakers' Working Group on Aging and Richard England, Board Chairman Emeritus of The Hechinger Group.

This luncheon will also be our public introduction of the term, "Aging in Community." Many senior serving agencies perpetuate "Aging in Place" as the platform in which they conduct their services. As Emmaus serves the "Frisky, Fragile and the Frail Senior," we believe that being functional and viable within a local community is vital to an older person's health and stability.
